

Hello everyone,

Welcome to the 2014 IMAC season. To keep the Scale Aerobatic dream alive in Tasmania, the Phoenix Flyers of Launceston will be hosting a one-day competition on the 31th May. If you haven't competed in an aerobatic competition before this is the perfect place to start. As the starting category "Basic" does not have any aircraft requirements. Meaning if you have anything from a trainer, .60 sports plane or even an electric pattern plane capable of performing a loop, roll and a stall turn then you can enter. For more information please contact the contest CD Ben Goode on: bengoode86@gmail.com or 0416 732 268.

Tassie IMAC

When: 31th May 2014

Where: Phoenix Flyers of Launceston located on Panshanger Road.

Cost: $5 for ASAA financial members and $10 for non-financial members.

Lunch and canteen facilities will also be available on the day.

On the day we will be flying three rounds, each round will consist of flying the same sequence twice (both into the wind). Basic will fly three rounds of their known sequence. Categories sportsman and up will fly two known rounds and one unknown.

Trophies will be awarded to 1st, 2nd and 3rd in each category entered. Categories include Basic, Sportsman, Intermediate, Advanced and Unlimited.

How do I enter the competition?

This part is simple, firstly you need to do is become a member of the Australian Scale Aerobatics Association (ASAA) database. If you're already a member please skip to point No4. There is NO fees associated with becoming a member; however, if you wish to become a financial member of the ASAA it will cost you $37.50/ year and this will give you access to the full website plus discounted competition entry fees.

1. Go to the ASAA website: <http://www.scaleaeros.com.au/>
2. At the top right of your screen next to the members log on section you will see "Join ASAA database". Click this and fill out all relevant fields.
3. From here you will be issued with a log on and an ASAA number.
4. Log in using your new username and password, go to the "Events" section and find the appropriate competition (Tassie IMAC).
5. From here you will be able to enter yourself into the competition.
6. While you are on the ASAA website please download a copy of the rules and read through them.
7. If you need any assistance please don't hesitate to contact me.
